SOSC A101 is designed for new entrants to the OUHK and is recommended as a starting point for pursuing a degree in Social Sciences. The course covers, at an introductory level, four subject areas: politics, economics, sociology and psychology.

Aims
This course aims to enable students to understand the ways in which social scientists view a society in a broad sense, as well as how these areas of study apply to Hong Kong.

Contents
The course covers the following topics:

- The impact that the behaviour of individuals has on society, as well as the ways that the structure and function of society influence the actions of individuals
- The insights that politics, economics, sociology and psychology bring to the understanding of the growth and development of society in general, and of Hong Kong in particular

Learning support
There will be regular two-hour tutorials and four supplementary lectures.

Assessment
There will be nine assignments. Students are required to submit assignments via the Online Learning Environment (OLE).

Set book(s)
There are no set books for this course.
